LIVEPROCESS ADDS TOP HEALTHCARE EXPERTS AND VETEREN SALES PROFESSIONAL TO GROWING TEAM

Developer of Healthcare Emergency Preparedness Software
Demonstrates Growth through Key Hires and Appointment

VERONA, NEW JERSEY (March 13, 2007) – LiveProcess, a pioneer in healthcare emergency preparedness and response, today announced the hiring of Mitch Saruwatari as vice president of quality and compliance and John A. Lubarsky as vice president of sales. The company has also appointed Charles Evans to its board of advisors.

Mr. Saruwatari brings more than 15 years of experience in healthcare and emergency management. For the past seven years, he served in several key positions at Kaiser Permanente, the nation's largest private integrated healthcare delivery system. At LiveProcess, Saruwatari is responsible for guiding the direction of the company's software platform, developing key relationships with national and state healthcare agencies and organizations, and helping to develop a new level of compliance for the healthcare industry. He holds a master's degree in public health from UCLA and has finished his coursework toward a doctorate degree in public health policy.

Mr. Lubarsky brings more than 25 years of experience in sales and sales management, including extensive selling into the government, education and healthcare sectors. Most recently, Lubarsky was vice president of sales for the Americas at Tandberg, a video technology leader. At LiveProcess, John A. Lubarsky is responsible for the company's sales strategy and the development of its sales force. After earning a bachelor's degree in engineering from Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pa., Lubarsky received his master's degree in business administration from Fairleigh Dickinson University, Madison, NJ.

As a member of LiveProcess' board of advisors, Charles R. Evans provides strategic counsel to the corporation. Mr. Evans recently served as president of the Eastern Group of HCA, the nation's leading provider of healthcare services. In this role, he was responsible for HCA's hospital operations east of the Mississippi, which includes approximately 98 hospitals contributing more than $8 billion in revenue.

-More-

Evans is a Fellow and a Governor in the American College of Healthcare Executives and is involved in numerous professional organizations including the Georgia Association of Healthcare Executives, ACHE Piedmont Plateau Regent's Advisory Council, and American Hospital Association. Prior to joining HCA, Evans served in executive positions at Memorial Medical Center of Jacksonville, FL, and Community Hospitals, Indianapolis, IN. He joined HCA in 1995 and has managed other company divisions including NC, MidAmerica, and Southeast.

“We are proud to announce these additions to our team as each has a unique background and expertise that will allow us to grow our business,” said Nathaniel Weiss, chief executive officer of LiveProcess. “As we continue to fulfill such an important need within the healthcare industry, our ability to attract thought leaders will be critical to our long-term success.”

About LiveProcess

LiveProcess was founded in 2003 on the recognition that one of the greatest weaknesses in healthcare facilities management was a lack of preparation, incident command, training and effective communication during a disaster. First responders such as fire and law enforcement had long utilized these tools to ensure their readiness and rapid reaction, but hospitals largely relied on a patchwork of internal programs that lacked standards and structure.

In 2004, LiveProcess partnered with the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to implement LiveProcess at the agency's Noble Training Center. In early 2005, LiveProcess entered into pilot programs with Sutter Health, Mayo Clinic, UNC, NSLIJ, HCA and Tenet Healthcare. LiveProcess also began work with the Center for Disease Control (CDC) and Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) to develop a regional framework for emergency preparedness and response.

In December of 2005, LiveProcess partnered with the Georgia Hospital Association (GHA) and began to deploy the platform at every hospital in the state. LiveProcess completed its integration with the GHA and the State of Georgia GA911.NET Public Safety web portal in early 2006. The company is now preparing to expand into other states as the demand continues to increase for a comprehensive solution to emergency preparedness and response for the healthcare community.
